TORAH PORTION

Tazria-Metzora

Tazria

The Torah commands a woman to bring a korban (sacrificial offering) after the birth of a child. A son is to be circumcised on the eighth day of his life. The Torah introduces the phenomenon of tzara'at (often mistranslated as leprosy) — a miraculous affliction that attacks people, clothing and buildings to awaken a person to spiritual failures. A kohen must be consulted to determine whether a particular mark is tzara'at or not. The kohen isolates the sufferer for a week. If the malady remains unchanged, confinement continues for a second week, after which the kohen decides the person's status. The Torah describes the different forms of tzara'at (biblical affliction). One whose tzara'at is confirmed wears torn clothing, does not cut his hair, and must alert others that he is ritually impure. He may not have normal contact with people. The phenomenon of tzara'at on clothing is described in detail.

Metzora

The Torah describes the procedure for a metzora (a person afflicted with tzara'at) upon conclusion of his isolation. This process extends for a week and involves korbanot and immersions in the mikveh. Then, a kohen must pronounce the metzora pure. A metzora of limited financial means may substitute lesser offerings for the more expensive animals. Before a kohen diagnoses that a house has tzara'at, household possessions are removed to prevent them from also being declared ritually impure. The tzara'at is removed by smashing and rebuilding that section of the house. If it reappears, the entire building must be razed. The Torah details those bodily secretions that render a person spiritually impure, thereby preventing his contact with holy items, and the Torah defines how one regains a state of ritual purity.

Joke of the week...

A guy walks into a parrot shop and asks, "How much is that parrot?"

"It's $5,000," replies the store owner. "Why so much?"

"Well this parrot knows the Talmud by heart."

The shopper was impressed. "What about that parrot?" he asked.

"It's $10,000." "Why so much?"

"Oh this bird knows the Talmud and all of the major rabbinic commentaries."

The shopper notices a platinum cage and asks "How much?"

The owner says, "$100,000." "Wow!! What does that bird know?"

The shop owner replies, "I have no idea but the first two birds call him 'Rebbe'!!"

Today's Riddles...

1) If you're 8 feet away from a door and with each move you advance half the distance to the door. How many moves will it take to reach the door?

2) How many sides does a circle have?
