TORAH PORTION

Thazria

PAGE: 460

The Torah commands a woman to bring a korban (sacrificial offering) after the birth of a child. A son is to be circumcised on the eighth day of his life. The Torah introduces the phenomenon of tzara'at (often mistranslated as leprosy) — a miraculous affliction that attacks people, clothing and buildings to awaken a person to spiritual failures. A kohen must be consulted to determine whether a particular mark is tzara'at or not. The kohen isolates the sufferer for a week. If the ailment remains unchanged, confinement continues for a second week, after which the kohen decides the person's status. The Torah describes the different forms of tzara'at. One whose tzara'at is confirmed wears torn clothing, does not cut his hair, and must alert others that he is ritually impure. He may not have normal contact with people. The phenomenon of tzara'at on clothing is described in detail.

Words of Wisdom from Rabbi Jonathan Sacks (z"l):

From time to time couples come to see me before their wedding. Sometimes they ask me whether I have any advice to give them as to how to make their marriage strong. In reply I give them a simple suggestion. It is almost magical in its effects. It will make their relationship strong and in other unexpected ways it will transform their lives.

They have to commit themselves to the following ritual. Once a day, usually at the end of the day, they must each praise the other for something the other has done that day, no matter how small: an act, a word, a gesture that was kind or sensitive or generous or thoughtful. The praise must be focused on that one act, not generalized. It must be genuine: it must come from the heart. And the other must learn to accept the praise.

That is all they have to do. It takes at most a minute or two. But it has to be done, not sometimes, but every day.

Joke...

Mrs. Goldman has a problem with her wardrobe door in the bedroom. Every time a bus passes outside the house, the door of the wardrobe would fall off.

She called Hymie Katz the repairman to try and fix the problem.

Hymie comes, and he sees that indeed the door did fall off every time a bus passed by. "Okay!" said Hymie, "I'm going to step inside the wardrobe, you close the door behind me, 'til I see if I can detect what the problem is," and he steps into the wardrobe. Mrs. Goldman closes the door behind him.

At this point the husband suddenly arrives home, and finds his wife in the bedroom talking to somebody. He rushes upstairs, and opens the wardrobe door, sees Hymie and shouts, "What the heck are you doing in there?"

Hymie meekly replies, "Believe it or not, I'm waiting for the bus!"
