G-d commands Moshe to build a Mishkan (Sanctuary) and supplies him with detailed instructions. The Children of Israel are asked to contribute precious metals and stones, fabrics, skins, oil and spices. In the Mishkan's outer courtyard are an altar for the burnt offerings and a laver for washing. The Tent of Meeting is divided by a curtain into two chambers. The outer chamber is accessible only to the kohanim, the descendants of Aharon. This contains the table of showbreads, the menorah, and the golden altar for incense. The innermost chamber, the Holy of Holies, may be entered only by the kohen gadol, and only once a year, on Yom Kippur. Here is the Ark that held the Ten Commandments inscribed on the two tablets of stone that G-d gave to the Jewish nation on Mount Sinai. All of the utensils and vessels, as well as the construction of the Mishkan, are described in great detail.

The Texas Ten Commandments

Rabbi Shulman took up a new position as a Rabbi in a smaller city in Texas. He was having some trouble connecting to his congregants as he was a New Yorker and they were, well, real Texans. So he came up with an idea to make the language of the Torah relevant in the language of Texas. He posted the following outside of his shul:

The Texas Ten Commandments:

I'm G-d.

Ain't no one else.

Don't use m'name if you don't gotta.

Git yourself to shul on Shabbos.

Honour your Ma and Pa.

No killin'.

No foolin' around with another fellow's gal.

Don't take what ain't yers.

Watch yer mouth.

Don't be hankerin' for yer buddy's stuff.
