TORAH PORTION: Balak PAGE 669

Balak, king of Moav, is in morbid fear of Bnei Yisrael. He summons a renowned sorcerer named Bilaam to curse them. First, G-d speaks to Bilaam and forbids him to go. But, because Bilaam is so insistent, G-d appears to him a second time and permits him to go. While en route, a malach (emissary from G-d) blocks Bilaam's donkey's path. Unable to contain his frustration, Bilaam strikes the donkey each time it stops or tries to detour. Miraculously, the donkey speaks, asking Bilaam why he is hitting her. The malach instructs Bilaam regarding what he is permitted to say and what he is forbidden to say regarding the Jewish People. When Bilaam arrives, King Balak makes elaborate preparations, hoping that Bilaam will succeed in the curse. Three times Bilaam attempts to curse and three times blessings issue instead. Balak, seeing that Bilaam has failed, sends him home in disgrace.

Bnei Yisrael begin sinning with the Moabite women and worshipping the Moabite idols, and they are punished with a plague. One of the Jewish leaders brazenly brings a Midianite princess into his tent, in full view of Moshe and the people. Pinchas, a grandson of Aharon, grabs a spear and kills both evil doers. This halts the plague, but not before 24,000 have died.

Joke...

During an Israeli pop concert in Israel, Daniel, the lead singer, asks the audience for some quiet. Then, when silence descends, he starts slowly clapping his hands in a gentle rhythm. The audience are mesmerized. He then puts his lips close up to the microphone and says, "What I'm about to say is important to all of us who care about our fellow humans. With every clap of my hands, a child somewhere in Africa dies." Then a voice is heard from the back of the audience. "So nu mister Daniel? Vy don't you stop clapping?"
