Come [to Pharaoh]

G-d tells Moshe that he is hardening Pharaoh's heart so that through miraculous plagues the world will know for all time that He is the one true G-d. Pharaoh is warned about the plague of locusts and is told how severe it will be. Pharaoh agrees to release only the men, but Moshe insists that everyone must go. During the plague, Pharaoh calls for Moshe and Aharon to remove the locusts, and he admits he has sinned. G-d ends the plague but hardens Pharaoh's heart, and again Pharaoh fails to free the Jews. The country, except for the Jewish People, is then engulfed in a palpable darkness. Pharaoh calls for Moshe and tells him to take all the Jews out of Egypt, but to leave their flocks behind. Moshe tells him that not only will they take their own flocks, but Pharaoh must add his own too. Moshe tells Pharaoh that G-d is going to bring one more plague, the death of the firstborn, and then the Jews will leave Egypt. G-d again hardens Pharaoh's heart, and Pharaoh warns Moshe that if he sees him again, Moshe will be put to death. G-d tells Moshe that the month of Nissan will be the chief month. The Jewish people are commanded to take a sheep on the 10th of the month and guard it until the 14th. The sheep is then to be slaughtered as a Pesach offering, its blood put on their doorposts, and its roasted meat eaten. The blood on the door-post will be a sign that their homes will be passed-over when G-d strikes the firstborn of Egypt. The Jewish People are told to memorialize this day as the Exodus from Egypt by never eating chametz on Pesach. Moshe relays G-d's commands, and the Jewish People fulfill them flawlessly. G-d sends the final plague, killing the first born, and Pharaoh sends the Jews out of Egypt. G-d tells Moshe and Aharon the laws concerning the Pesach sacrifice, pidyon haben (redemption of the first-born son) and tefillin.

They found out

Avraham has done very well in business and is now very rich. One day, to show off his new Bentley Continental car, he tells his driver to take him to the exclusive 'Neasden Golf Club'. But when they get there, a sign over the door clearly states that Jews are not permitted access. Undeterred, Avraham says to his driver, "Wait here for me." His driver replies, "But sir, the sign – they'll kick you out immediately." "But I don't have to tell them I'm Jewish," says Avraham, as he walks to the gate. So his driver waits. One hour goes by, then two and soon three. Then, after three and a half hours, Avraham is thrown out by two tough looking security guards. His driver asks, "So what happened, sir?" "Everything was OK until we got to the eighth hole," replies Avraham. "I sliced my drive and the ball dropped into the lake. I shouted out, 'Oh, my God, what shall I do now?' and then the waters separated ...and everybody knew."

Thought for today...

Laugh when you can. Apologize when you should and let go of what you can't change.
