Parshas Tzav – Shabbat Hagadol

PARSHA – Pg. 429

HAFTORAH – Pg. 1005

TORAH PORTION:

Tzav

PAGE 429

The Torah addresses Aharon and his sons to teach them additional laws relating to their service. The ashes of the korban olah — the offering burned on the altar throughout the night — are to be removed from the area by the Kohen after he changes his special linen clothing. The olah is brought by someone who forgot to perform a positive commandment of the Torah. The kohen retains the skin. The fire on the altar must be kept constantly ablaze. The korban mincha is a meal-offering of flour, oil and spices. A handful is burned on the altar and a kohen eats the remainder before it becomes leaven. The Parsha describes the special korbanot to be offered by the Kohen Gadol each day, and by Aharon's sons and future descendants on the day of their inauguration. The chatat, the korban brought after an accidental transgression, is described, as are the laws of slaughtering and sprinkling the blood of the asham guilt-korban. The details of shelamim, various peace korbanot, are described, including the prohibition against leaving uneaten until morning the remains of the todah, the thanks-korban. All sacrifices must be burned after they may no longer be eaten. No sacrifice may be eaten if it was slaughtered with the intention of eating it too late. Once they have become ritually impure, korbanot may not be eaten and should be burned. One may not eat a korban when he is ritually impure. Blood and chelev, forbidden animal fats, are prohibited to be eaten. Aharon and his sons are granted the breast and shank of every korban shelamim. The inauguration ceremony for Aharon, his sons, the Mishkan and all of its vessels is detailed.

Shabbat Hagadol ("The Great Sabbath"), is the Shabbat immediately preceding Passover. It commemorates the miracle in Egypt where Israelites safely prepared lambs for the first Paschal sacrifice on the 10th of Nisan. It is marked by special readings (Haftarah), traditional long sermons about Passover laws, and early preparations for the holiday.

JOKE...

A Martian landed on Earth near New York City. His flying saucer got a flat tire as he landed, so he walked down the streets of New York looking for a spare tire. He went by a delicatessen and saw some bagels in the window. He asked the proprietor, can I buy one of those tires? The proprietor said, that's not a tire, it's a bagel. The Martian asked, "What do you do with it"? The proprietor said, "You eat it." So the Martian took a bite and said, "You know, this would go good with lox and cream cheese."

Welcome to all visitors to the Shaar this Shabbat.
